About the book

When the Britishers first came to North Eastern region they wrote back home that, there are certain flowers growing in this part of the world which are beyond description. These are the orchids which are beyond description.

Since time immemorial Orchids become the center of attraction among the naturalists. Orchids are accepted to be the World's most exotic and fascinating flowers, with their extraordinary Variety of sizes, shapes, colours, and markings. The painter in Water-colours, the Ceramic artist, the Sculptor and the Photographer all find in Orchids the inspiration for their art

This book is the result of painstaking work of survey in the forests of Nagaon district supported by University Grants Commission Govt. of India. Many interesting incidents occurred during expedition into forests. In one of the surveys at Amsoi reserve forests, the authors discovered an ancient burial site of the pre Ahom era. During the survey of the Diju valley area, the authors were surrounded by villagers with knives, sticks etc as earlier a incident of dacoity occurred in the area. The villagers mistook the authors to be the same dacoits. At Lawkhowa, illegal woodcutters and poachers kidnapped the authors and kept them prisoners. Even then, the final outcome was doctorate of philosophy for Sri Basistha Kalita. Hopefully it will contribute to create awareness about one of the important heritage of Assam, the Orchids.
